This diagram shows the motor being attached to the chassis. The motor is placed on top of the grey Technic plate, which is already secured by the red frame. A yellow arrow points to the motor, indicating its position. The motor is connected to the grey Technic plate, which is part of the chassis structure.

This diagram shows the assembly of the front of the ship's hull. A long, narrow black Technic beam is being attached to the front of the red hull. The beam is secured by several white and yellow Technic pins. A green arrow points to the location where a new white pin should be inserted into the beam.
